DETAILED ACTION

Receipt is acknowledged of the request for continued examination filed 10/07/2009.

The following rejection is maintained in this action:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 19-21 and 24 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Faxon in view of Tardiff.

As noted above, Faxon discloses a polymeric coated stent containing rapamycin. The Synthetic polymers read on stabilizing agents" since they hold the bioactive in place and prevent it from being immediately degraded or oxidized.

Tardiff discloses the use of antioxidants such as probucol (a butylated hydroxytoluene) also for use in treating restenosis (see Abstract).

Art Unit: 1615

Those of ordinary skill would have therefore found it well within their skill to combine the well known therapies of Faxon which sets out a polymer coated stent containing rapamycin, and Tardiff which sets out probucol as an agent for use against restenosis. The use of both agents in a coated stent would have flowed from these teachings with a reasonable expectation of beneficial results against restenosis. Therefore the use of both rapamycin and probucol in a polymer coated stent would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention given the combined teachings of Faxon and Tardiff.

The following are new rejections based on the amendments to the claims:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 19-22 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The terms "including at least one of PBMA and PEVA", "separate and distinct antioxidant", "and mixes more with", do not appear to have support in the original specification and are considered new matter. Claim 19 also now mixes the antioxidant, rather than the stabilizing agent. Support could not be found for this amendment.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 19-22 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 19 refers to the antioxidant which "mixes more with the pharmaceutical agent". However, it is indefinite as to what it mixes more than in comparison. Clarification is requested.
